Since October 1995, Mr. Kading is the Founder, President and Director of Kading Companies, S.A., a British Virgin Islands corporation located in the heart of the financial district of NYC. Kading Companies, S.A. is primarily a holding company and merchant banking organization. Kading Companies also seeks companies to acquire for its own account. Kevin H. Kading oversees all aspects of this entity. Mr. Kading's focus is investigating opportunities seeking value above the perceived market values of public and private companies.

In October 2004 Kevin Kading incorporated United Aerospace, Inc. to seek out technologies developed by the National Aeronautics & Space Administration ("NASA"). My objective is to lock down, through licensing or other means, one or more technologies and build a company around the technology. I have identified and reviewed several technologies and have had ongoing discussion with NASA personnel and inventors. On December 14, 2005 UAI signed an agreement with NASA to license a unique quick connect/disconnect coupler technology from NASA.

Since January 2000, Mr. Kading was appointed to the Presidency of Net/Guard Technologies, Inc. a publicly held company that primarily developed and manufactured PC network file server fault-tolerant add-on sub-systems, used to reduce overall network downtime attributed to failures of the network's file server. The company ceased operations in 1998 and Mr. Kading anticipates revitalizing the corporation during the 2006 year as a public company and seeking a merger candidate to reestablish shareholder value.

Since October 1997, Mr. Kading has been a founder, officer and Chairman of the Board of Advanced Reconnaissance Corp. ("ARC"). ARC management has developed hyperspectral and multispectral imaging devices that will be utilized by numerous industries ranging from agricultural to military and homeland security. Both Kading Companies and Kevin Kading are approximately 10% shareholders each in ARC. Mr. Kading resigned as Chairman on the 15th of February 2006.

From October 1997 to June 2004, Mr. Kading has been a founder and officer of Syringex Medical, Inc., which seeks out new innovative medical products which it intends to acquire, develop, redesign, complete FDA clearance procedures and find suitable OEM contacts to manufacture and market the products. Syringex's first product – a retractable needle hypodermic safety syringe was cleared, by the FDA, for manufacturing and marketing on June 23, 2003. Syringex expects that complete funding and manufacturing of the syringe will commence during 2006. Both Kading Companies and Kevin Kading are shareholders of Syringex.

From October 1997 to July 2000, Mr. Kading had been an officer and director of Global Stock Exchange Corp. Global operated several web-sites that processed incoming data to assist in mergers and acquisitions between public and private companies. Global Stock Exchange Corp. was a 60% subsidiary of Kading Companies, SA. until November 2000 when Kading Companies sold its position.

Since February 1997, Mr. Kading has been an officer and director of CKL Associates, Inc. CKL was originally set-up as the liaison between private companies in the Peoples Republic of China seeking entry into the public equity markets in the United States and all investor relation activities in the United States. CKL now assists private companies with the due diligence requirements necessary for Form 211 filings pursuant to SEC Rule 15c2-11. These filings, submitted by broker/dealers to the NASD, upon approval by the NASD, allow the broker/dealer to make a public market for the company's common stock. Through the CKL network and to a lesser extent, we assist public companies with investor relation activities. Kading Companies and Kevin Kading own a substantial interest in CKL.

From April of 1994 to July 1995 Mr. Kading was the owner, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of The Wellington Group, Inc. located at 20 Exchange Place in NYC. He oversaw all administrative, investment banking, market making, trading and sales operations of the registered broker-dealer until January of 1995. In October of 1994, Mr. Kading acquired all of the issued and outstanding stock of The Wellington Group, Inc. and shortly thereafter hired a president and head trader to assist in the management of the organization. Prior to acquiring the firm, he was President and Director engaging in investment banking and securities sales. Kading voluntarily closed the firm during June 1995 as a result of a "short raid" on several principal equity positions owned by Wellington.

From April 1990 to April 1994, he was a Registered Principal with Baird, Patrick & Co., Inc., an investment-banking firm located at 20 Exchange Place in New York specializing in institutional sales.

From 1993 to 1994, Mr. Kading was President and a director of Class, Inc., a publicly held corporation that acquired Avery Communications Corp., a fiber optical company located in Texas.

From 1990 to 1993, he was Chairman of the Board and President of Consolidated Holdings Corp., a publicly traded company which acquired Midcon, which owned a nine million gallon petroleum terminal located on the Mississippi River in St. Louis, Missouri.
